BYHP (Working with Young People)

Zenos, UK's leading provider of IT Support Systems Training and the world's largest government-funded Microsoft Academy has recently donated their time and expertise in bringing BYHP into the 21st Century!

BYHP also extend their thanks to Cambridge University for donating desktop computers for all staff members.

Thanks to Zenos the computers at BYHP are now fully networked and the staff has access to email and the internet.

Young People who visit BYHP's Drop In Centre now have access to two of these computers, thus allowing them to undertake Learn Direct Courses, bid for accommodation via the Cherwell District Council's Choice Based Lettings arrangements, look for jobs and other relevant training courses, update their IT skills and keep in touch with their families.

Pam Linzey-Jones, Company Secretary, at BYHP, said: "BYHP really cannot thank Zenos enough for their help and support. The gift of staff time in the form of Steven Gordon, Markus Backman, Jamie Woolward, Joe Cooke and Shams Tameez was invaluable." Three members of the Zenos IT team are recent graduates of Zenos Academies and it was good for Young People who visit BYHP to meet people similar in age who have excelled in IT and are now willing to pass their knowledge on by helping in the community.
